2 AD-DSL Content Change History..... 3

3 AD-DSL Support & Maintenance 3

1 AD-DSL and IPC-1754 Standard

The Aerospace and Defense Declarable Substances List (AD-DSL) is available in multiple formats: Microsoft Excel (.XLSX), PDF format, and XML format.

The AD-DSL is compatible with the IPC-1754 data exchange standard (version 1.0, amendment 2, noted “4.1”) and its SubstanceList schema (XSD) controlling the XML format of the list.

The AD-DSL is provided with its own schema (XSD) extending the IPC-1754 schema for SubstanceList.

2 AD-DSL Content Change History

AD-DSL version 9.0 has been updated to include additional declarable substances because information on the usage of these substances in the AD supply chain is of concern to IAEG® for chemicals management and reporting purposes. 203 substances were removed from the AD-DSL; a list of deleted substances can be found on the deletions tab along with the date and reason for deletion.

European Chemicals Agency identification numbers (“ECHA IDs”) were incorporated into V4.1-V7.0 of the AD-DSL as an additional data element. ECHA IDs were removed from the AD-DSL starting with V8 in order to keep the AD-DSL regulatorily agnostic.

Schema location has been updated to reflect the new version 4.1f:

xsi:schemaLocation=<http://www.iaeg.com/chemicalrpt/addsl/4.1>
http://www.iaeg.com/elements/pdf/ADDSLSubstanceListSchema_4.1f.xsd

Note that namespace is kept as <http://www.iaeg.com/chemicalrpt/addsl/4.1> because it reflects main version of the schema and is not sensitive to error fixes.

3 AD-DSL Schema Change History

AD-DSL XSD Schema version 4.1 has been fixed for a minor error regarding schema version.

AD-DSL Schema 4.1f is considered backwards compatible because previous version 4.1e was erroneous.

#	Change	Backward Compatibility
1	Change schemaVersion from “4.1copy” to “4.1”	Yes

4 AD-DSL Support & Maintenance

AD-DSL standard is owned and maintained by IAEG®. It is available on the IAEG® website (www.iaeg.com) on the “Aerospace and Defense Declarable Substances List (“AD-DSL”)” webpage: <http://www.iaeg.com/chemicalrpt/addsl>
